We wish to recommend Lord of Autumn, Golden Standard, Oakleigh Monarch and Milton J. Cross for exhibition purposes, and we have a very fine strain of all of them.

If you have never grown the foreign dahlia, Laetare, we think that you are missing something in the red and yellow cut flower class. We also recommend our last year's introductions, Betsy and Primrose, as especially good for cutting.

Orders will be shipped by express in cold weather, and we will pay the charges on all orders of $5.00 or more. We CANNOT GUARANTEE them against freezing by Parcel Post.

Walter Bissell, Austinburg, Ohio.

OUR 1939 INTRODUCTIONS.

HILLSIDE SUNSET - (1939), I.D., autumn. The growth is good, with dark heavy foliage. Height - five feet. Roots $15.00, plants $5.00. One third off to the trade.

This is a seedling of our 1936 introduction, Margrace, and we believe that it will be even more popular than its parent. We base this statement on its behavior in our own garden, in the gardens where we had it on trial and on its show room records.

It was easily the most admired dahlia in our gardens this fall. At the Fairmont Trial Grounds Hillside Sunset scored 86, and we understand that there were only four Certificates given there this year. Mr. Currie of Sheboygan, Wisc., grew it on trial and lists it as one of the six new introductions for 1939 which he considers particularly outstanding.

On the show table we report as follows. At the Ohio Dahlia Society Show at Cleveland Hillside Sunset won in the informal decorative undisseminated class, and was awarded the American Home Achievement Medal. One of these blooms won the coveted American Dahlia Society Medal for the largest and best bloom in the show.

We had a week of rain before the Mid West Show and the blooms did not carry so well. Regardless of this we tied with Lois Walcher and Everybody's Favorite in the informal decorative undisseminated class, and won the Michigan Dahlia Society Medal for the largest bloom grown by a commercial grower. Other winnings include a blue ribbon in the undisseminated class at Akron, first in the open to all informal decorative, autumn at the Ohio Show, and it was the central motif in our blue ribbon commercial display at that show.

Every since we have grown dahlias, we have hoped to win in the largest bloom class, and it was a source of great gratification to us that Hillside Sunset won two such awards this past season. You will find this dahlia on the leading Honor Rolls.

HILLSIDE GOLD - (1939), straight cactus, color gold, but dark enough to be classed as autumn on the show table. Good growth and foliage, height three feet. Roots $10.00, plants $3.35. One third off to the trade.

This dahlia is a fine cut flower, keeping as well when cut as any dahlia we have tried. The blooms may be cut very young. Two baskets of this at Cleveland attracted almost as much attention as Hillside Sunset. The blooms average 8x4, facing side or up.

We did not show Hillside Gold very extensively this year, but it won two blue ribbons in the cactus classes, and we believe that it will make a place for itself on the show table.

You will find both of the above dahlias listed in Mr. Johnson's Dahlia Futurity in the January issue of House Beautiful.

We will send you one good propagating root of each of these dahlias for $15.00, net.

Walter Bissell, Austinburg, Ohio.
